KIDNEYS WEAKENING? LOOK OUT!

Kidney and bladder troubles don't disappear of themselves. They grow upon you, slowly but steadily, undermin- ing your health with deadly cer- tainty, until you fall a victim to in- curable disease.

Stop your troubles while there is time. Don't wait until little pains be- come big aches. Don't trifle with dis- ease. To avoid future suffering begin treatment with GOLD MEDAL

Hearten Oil Capsules now. Take three or four every day until you feel that you are entirely free from pain.

This well known preparation has been one of the national remedies of Holland for centuries. In 1896 the govern- ment of the Netherlands granted a special charter authorizing its prepara- tion and sale.

The good housewife of Holland would almost as soon be without food as without her "Real Dutch Drops," as she quaintly calls GOLD MEDAL Hearten Oil Capsules. Their use re- stores strength and is responsible in a great measure for the sturdy, robust health of the Hollanders.

Do not delay. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with a box of GOLD MEDAL Hearten Oil Capsules. Take them as directed, and if you are not satisfied with results your druggist will gladly refund your money. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on the box and accept no other in sealed boxes, three sizes.

George Towne of Concord spoke in a very effective manner of certain phases of the situation. The Dover Boys' orchestra furnished excellent music and Miss Marjorie Broom sang several patriotic selections in her usual pleasing manner.

Chesley Drew, the well known and popular bandmaster, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Winifred H. Tynon, at North Andover, Mass., Wednesday morning, aged 55 years. He resided in Dover ever since he was 2 years old, until a short time since, when he went to live with his daughter.

For more than 50 years Chesley Drew was interested in bands and music. As a band leader, he had no superior in this section of New Hamp- shire. He was a member of Dover lodge, B. P. O. E., and leaves surviv- ing him a widow, one daughter and three grand children.

Mrs. H. E. Hatch, widow of the late Prof. A. E. Hatch, of Leon, Ia., who has been the guest of C. A. Ham- mond and family for the past three weeks, left for her home Wednesday morning. She was accompanied by Miss Laura M. Hammond as far as Salem, Mass., where they will be the guests of Miss Hammond's, uncle for a few days.

Howard W. Shackley of Central Falls, R. I., who has been here visiting friends for the last few days, returned to his home Wednesday morning.

John H. Norton died at his home on the Littleworth road, Tuesday after- noon, aged 72 years, 9 months and 29 days. Mr. Norton was born and raised in Kittery, Me., but came to this city more than 50 years ago, where he has ever since resided. He died on the 50th anniversary of his marriage.

MR. HURLEY URGES PEACE TIME NEED FOR IMPROVEMENT IN ALL FORMS OF HIGHWAY TRANSPORT.

The highways transport committee of the Council of National Defence, which was formed to do a vital war- time task, has been called upon by Chairman Edward M. Hurley, of the United States Shipping Board, to per- form a peace-time function no less im- portant than that which fell to it dur- ing the war.

Chairman Hurley points to the greater need today than ever before for the stimulation of all forms of highways transport in carrying down to the merchant marine of today and tomorrow the foodstuffs necessary to feed the hungry millions of stricken Europe. His letter follows:

United States Shipping Board,
Washington, Nov. 7, 1918.
Highways Transport Committee
Council of National Defence,
Washington, D. C.

Gentlemen:

Our merchant marine of today and tomorrow will carry a message of good will to the nations of the world.

Millions of cruelly starved folk face westward from every shore with mouths open to the promise of Ameri- ca. These must be fed, and then clothed, and also supplied with the other necessities of life. Our grand privilege is now here to restore life, strength and hope to these martyred brothers of a hundred tongues.

Highways transport facilities at the farmers' gate, and at every farmer's gate, must immediately suggest the initial phase of overseas distribution; must make a picture in the farmer's mind of the movement of the products of his soil and labor from his own gate through to the distant pupils of the world—to Europe, to Algiers, to Athens, and the Orient.

The highways transport service is the first step in the great system of transportation to the sea and then on the merchant marine to the far points of the world.

Food must begin to move soon from every hill, through every valley of the great country behind our shores, down to the shipping points before we can start our ships from the ports and fulfill our duty; and, with promise of the war and before us, the Highways Transport Committee, throughout this land could and should render a peace time service by stimulating highways transport of nourishment and supplies to badly needed. Routes and channels from shipping points must be opened up and efficiently maintained and our merchant marine must be built to meet the demands for distribution overseas.

Resistance in any form to the free movement of farm products must be reduced and eliminated, and the most efficient utilization of man power must be introduced wherever possible.

The United States Shipping Board urges that this message be carried through you and your regional chair- men of the State organizations and on down through your great body of patri- otic men whose vision can well em- brace the crying need of their broth- ers in other lands for help.

Very truly yours,
EDWARD M. HURLEY,
Chairman.

To Punish the Former Kaiser.

That Georges Clemenceau, the French Premier, does not intend to let Wilhelm Hohenzollern escape pun- ishment for his crimes is evident from the request officially made to the law faculty of the Paris University to give its opinion on the question whether the extradition of Wilhelm can be demanded. "What shall be done with the Kaiser?" was the question asked months ago by the Herald and answered in letters from the public so unanimous in their condemnation of the man chiefly responsible for the war that the Swedish government, at the request of the German Ambassa- dor, refused to allow the edition con- taining the article to pass through the mails.

Then, as now, there was an expres- sion of emphatic opinion that the former Emperor should be punished, but since he has taken refuge in flight the question of punishment is complicated somewhat with that of the right of asylum. An indictment for murder was found against him in England; in the Lusitania cases in this country he was held responsible for the crime which sent so many Americans to their death, but no indictment was found.

Edmond Clunet, a French authority on international law, holds that it is impossible to demand Wilhelm Hohen- zollern's extradition.

On the other hand, as the Temps as- serts, there is nothing to prevent Hol- land expelling an undesirable guest. Or she might surrender him to the Allies as an act of courtesy, just as Spain handed over Tweed to the United States without any extradition treaty. If the Allies want him they can probably get him, and Mr. Clemenceau's request shows that they are preparing steps to get him with- in their jurisdiction. After that, pun- ishment to fit his crimes will be cer- tain.

A Policy of Niggardliness.

(From the Boston Transcript.)
November graduates of Central Training Schools for Infantry Officers have been treated by the War De- partment with a niggardliness that no believe Congress and the country will be quick to resent. These gradu- ates were required to contract for officers' uniform and other equip- ment prior to their graduation. Then came the signing of the armistice. They were graduated and either re- leased from the Army altogether or furloughed into the reserve, depend- ing upon preferences and qualifica- tions for future service. They were not given an allowance for their uniforms, as we understand it done in the Navy, nor were they given any pay as of- ficers. They were allowed three copies a mile travel pay to the place of en- listment and turned adrift. The result is that thousands of newly commis- sioned officers are today walking the streets looking for emergency jobs in an effort to get out of debt.

What has our pacifist Secretary of War to say in defense of this treat- ment? His tender-heartedness toward the profiteers among war workers in other fields is daily revealing itself here and there in orders for the up- keep of war wagons and the continu- ance of contracts. But toward the men who were ready to pay with their bodies, the second lieutenant of in- fantry among whom the casualties are heavier than in any other branch of the service, he has turned a deaf ear. We hope these young men will be able to secure credit until Congress meets, because we are confident that the injustice which they have suffered at Mr. Baker's hands will be rectified at least to the extent of a joint reso- lution compelling him to pay these young men enough to cover the cost of outfit for officer's equipment.

PRECIOUS TIME WASTED

It isn't the dollar you waste on in- terior music lessons—that matters, but the precious time of your child.

You can somehow get other dollars, but the time wasted is gone forever. The best is none too good in music.

GERMANY PLANS FOR 'NEXT WAR'

London, Dec. 4.—In Germany there is a society called the Deutsche Fliegerbund, just as the German navy league was largely influential in giving Germany a powerful navy, so this new flying league, it is believed, is expected to promote the German aim "in the next war" of conquering the world from the air.

According to a Bremen paper, the league will undertake the preliminary work in the training of young men for the air service. Flying schools are to be established for the practical and theoretical instruction of boys from 15 to 18 years old.
The training will be carried out, the paper says, by means of model airplanes. The monthly fee will be one mark, about 25 cents. "Practical training, four marks a year," the announcement reads.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE LAST FOR RED CROSS

Boston, Dec. 4.—That the American Red Cross will conduct no further campaigns for war funds was the starting statement made here today by George A. Gaskill, New England chairman for the Christmas roll call of the American Red Cross.
Mr. Gaskill's statement was based on a telegram received today from H. P. Davidson, chairman of the American Red Cross War Council.
That there will be no further Red Cross campaigns for war funds does not, of course, affect in any way the coming membership Christmas roll call campaign the week of December 10th to 23d. This campaign, however, is not a money, but a membership campaign for the year 1919. The cost of membership being the nominal dollar.
In his dispatch to Chairman Gaskill, Mr. Davidson said: "The field for Red Cross effort is going to be in the future upon a tremendous scale and of a beautiful and inspiring character. The Christmas roll call will constitute the very foundation of Red Cross effort in the future and I firmly believe that the future of the Red Cross will be devoted to service, which cannot receive less than the wholehearted, active support of the whole American people. Its ability to realize that future will be dependent upon the support and the membership for 1919 obtained during the week of the Christmas roll call. In this period of transition from war to peace I believe this coming campaign will be such a tremendous success that our Red Cross organization which has been built to such proportions out of love, sympathy and effort during the war may continue to be an agency of human service worthy of the whole American nation."

BRING SOLDIERS HOME ON THE DREADNOUGHTS

Paris, Dec. 4.—The ten American dreadnoughts which will escort President Wilson into French waters will turn about immediately after their arrival to carry homeward a large party of American soldiers and sailors. The trip will be so timed that the men will arrive at a home port by Christmas. The operation will constitute one of the most extensive movements of battleships for transport purpose ever undertaken.
The fleet will reach Brest about Dec. 11 and it will probably be possible to complete the work of coaling, provisioning and embarking within three or four days. Vice Admiral Wilson is now at Brest making arrangements for the movement and determining the transport capacity of each battleship, which at this time is less than usual because of the regular crews having been increased so that recruits might be trained. A large number of folding steel beds will be mounted between decks, however, thus making the aggregate capacity of the battleship fleet many thousands of men. Brest is already crowded with soldiers and sailors awaiting the homeward trip, and the accommodations of the city are being sorely taxed.

Wilson's Meed of Praise.

Not the least interesting part of what President Wilson had to say in his latest message to Congress had reference to what he termed the stay-at-homes, those who had not the honor of bearing arms or manning the ships that did their part in the great struggle so valiantly on the seas. It was a fitting tribute to the vast army of patriotic men and women who, far from the scene of conflict, exerted themselves so earnestly and effectively to back the forces at the front and help bring victory to the Allied cause—the cause of humanity.

"Those of us who stayed at home did our duty," said President Wilson. "The war could not have been won or the gallant men who fought it given their opportunity to win it otherwise."

True are those words. The men and women of this country did their duty in a way to bring to them a full share of the everlasting honor that rests upon the brave men who faced the hardships and dangers of the battle front.

In no previous war in the history of the world was so much done for soldiers and sailors as was done by the American people during the war just closed. Not only did the government provide for them as no other nation could have done, but the people were not content to drop the matter there. Through the Red Cross and other organizations they forwarded necessities and comforts on a scale that was the wonder of the world, with the result that the men in the field and on the seas lacked nothing which it was possible to provide under the conditions of war. The president spoke truly when he said that those of us who stayed at home "can never be ashamed."

Mr. Wilson spoke in terms of the highest appreciation of the business men who laid down their private affairs to serve the government in the great emergency, and of the hearty co-operation of manufacturers and employes in all lines of war work. Nor did he overlook the importance of the work done by women, their capacity for organization and co-operation, the effectiveness of everything they attempted; their self-sacrifice alike in what they did and what they gave.

While all are aware of the truth of these statements, such deserved acknowledgement from the head of the nation cannot fail to be gratifying to the great army of brave and self-sacrificing men and women who did their part so nobly behind the lines. Their work was an honor to themselves and to their country, and it was a work that will never be forgotten by those for whom it was so willingly and gladly performed.

The work of the United States in this war will shine with increasing lustre to the end of time. The men at the front did all they were called upon to do and the stay-at-homes were not less untiring in their efforts to redeem the world from the grip of a merciless military despotism.

As the horrors of war recede into the past these will be pleasant thoughts for Americans, and for the peoples to whose aid in a dire exigency they so unselfishly went.

The Federal Trade Commission charges five of the big packing plants in Chicago with combination in restraint of trade, and the packers retort that "It's no such thing." But, the charge having been made, it would seem to be up to the government to bring on the evidence.

It is suggested that the war just ended may result in the formation of a "Grand Army of the World." There is certainly plenty of material for such a body, but it is hardly necessary to say that there are some nationalities that would not be eligible to membership.

The time is at hand when the benefits of a Christmas Club are apparent. A local banking institution has just distributed $85,000 to the members of such a club who will find this large amount of "loose change" very acceptable during the coming holidays.

A lot of Kentucky distilleries have been sold at auction for far less than their former face value. It begins to look as if the crown of King Booze was going to the junk heap with the others.

Deer shooting is in progress in Massachusetts this week, and already one hunter has been killed by a freight train. There are startling possibilities in the open season on deer.

The President will visit a number of capitals while abroad. Why should he not favor Berlin with at least a brief call?

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Hamlin Endorsed.

(From the Brooklyn Eagle, Dem.) Charles S. Hamlin, Democrat of Massachusetts, would be a fairly conservative Secretary of the Treasury. It is not too much to hope that his name will receive due consideration.

Mr. Marshall's New Job.

(From the New York World) But yesterday Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall was in Boston talking of his job as "the best I ever had—no responsibilities, nothing to worry about, no precedents to look up, no politics to shape, nothing to be blamed for if things go wrong." The next day he is hurried to Washington, a long speaking trip through the West is cancelled, and he must attend to a "vast amount of important business to be considered by Congress" during the President's absence, which is summed up as "receiving Fushimi or Japan."

Thus is it in these great days that a Vice President of the United States never knows what to expect. No responsibilities? Nothing to worry about? No policies to shape or precedents to consult? Mr. Marshall, little guessed how soon the exigencies of a world crisis would force upon him to put aside the care-free life of the best of jobs to assume the onerous aspects of the highest statesmanship—bearing under so great a weight of responsibility.

But we know of no one better qualified to rise on so short a notice to the heights of these new responsibilities as receiving Prince Fushimi at the seat of Government than Tom Marshall of Indiana. The people may be assured that the precedents in the matter will be adequately consulted and the policies properly shaped, and that in their execution the State will suffer no harm. The Government at Washington will live and the country be safe, with only one President, whether he be at home or abroad.

A War Paradox.

(From the Springfield Union) It is one of the remarkable features of this remarkable war that the country which first threw down its arms and asked for peace is the only country that is still fighting. The war in Russia still continues on several fronts.

"High" Honors.

(From the Philadelphia Press, Rep.) Considerable fuss is being made over the assessment of sixty dollars per person for the privilege of marching with Senator Vane's Union Republican Club at the inauguration of Governor Spruell. Marching with Senator Vane may seem to be somewhat expensive, but nobody gets any kind of honor without paying for it in some way, and this chance may never come again.

"Have We Lost Our Republic?"

(From the New York World) "In saving the world have we lost our Republic?" asks Charles E. Hughes. To the former Supreme Court justice the centralized control into which the conduct of government under military necessity has developed is an astounding spectacle.

State lines have been practically obliterated, the officers of States and municipalities have acted as Federal agents, and all the powers of government have been directed to the one end of self-preservation, without regard to questions of jurisdiction. It is the possibility of the abuse of Federalized powers that excites his concern; the temptation to make a pretense of military exigency for ulterior purposes. Against the surrender of principle involved in that course Mr. Hughes utters a warning. The tendency must be checked if we are not to "wind up in an overcentralization, which would make our democracy a farce."

The plea of the Republican leader for the maintenance of State rights is an instructive example of the extent to which party principles are modified by modern conditions, particularly in opposition. But Mr. Hughes does not commit himself unreservedly to a policy of Democratic state powers. In the matter of the railroads he finds "just as much danger to our prosperity in undue decentralization as in overcentralization." If we are not to have Government ownership, "a sensible plan of regulation" must be devised. Congress must regulate "with relation to districts corresponding to the broad divisions of actual operations." And some operations are nation-wide.

The regulations of the railroads, as Mr. Hughes says, is a severely practical question. It should be settled on a basis of efficiency and not of politics. As perhaps the greatest of national problems arising after peace, it should be determined with a sole view to national welfare.

HEALTH WEEK MOVEMENT HERE

One of the important features of the social hygiene campaign in Portsmouth which, beginning Monday, Dec. 9, will be a series of lectures in the high school and also in the Junior school, Mr. Slayton, Superintendent of Schools, being thoroughly appreciative of the value of this educational movement, and the local Board of Instruction also heartily approves of the plan. Previous to the school lectures, however, the plan will be for lectures before the teachers and mothers of the city.

Hundreds of lectures by the staff of women physicians, connected with the women's section, social hygiene division, war department, have been given all over the country and with most satisfactory results.

Very recently, Dr. Sarah Sweet Windsor of Boston, who is at the head of the staff of New England women physicians, engaged in this work, spoke to the women teachers of the Massachusetts Teachers Association at a session in the State House in Boston. School lectures have been a feature of the health week campaign in Springfield, Mass., where Dr. Windsor and several other Boston doctors are giving over sixty lectures this week.

Commissioner of Education, Payson Smith, of Massachusetts is a strong supporter of the work, also Dr. A. O. Thomas, state superintendent of schools in Maine, and Dr. Charles W. Elliot, President Emeritus of Harvard College, believes that the opportunity which the war has given for the same, sensible discussion of these formerly tabooed topics is one of the greatest results of the war.

In its health week, beginning Dec. 9, Portsmouth is placing itself in the front rank of one of the most important educational movements ever undertaken in this vicinity of a social hygiene campaign under the direction of the United States government.

The aim of the government through the women's section of the social hygiene division is to reach every woman and girl in the United States. This is being done by lectures given by a staff of trained women physicians, who are addressing women in industry, shops, churches, schools, colleges, women's clubs—in fact, in any place where groups of women are gathered. Though the work is but a few months old more than 2000 lectures have been given since July.

NAVY YARD NOTES

Not Cut at Charlestown.

It doesn't look like any 25 percent cut at Charlestown yard according to the following from a Boston paper:

"Continued employment of the present force at the yard is assured according to advices from Washington, and it may even be necessary to increase the force on account of additional work being authorized. In certain departments there will be a reduction in the force, and those who have not measured up to the standard will be let go."

Starts Sentence Today.

Ensign John P. Murray began a year sentence at the Naval Prison today. He was sent here from Charlestown navy yard.

Big Money for Boston.

More than two million dollars' worth of improvements are underway at the yard. This includes the new storage house, the addition to the machine shop, the marine railway, the extension of the piers, the extension of the shipbuilders' shop and the changes at the power house. A new fire-prevention system at the lower end of the yard is about completed. It is to be used in case of the oil taking fire and is a new chemical process for extinguishing fires of this nature.

Must Have Permission.

Photographers cannot take pictures of any transport arriving at navy yards without permission from yard officials.

Sent to Norfolk.

A detachment of the marine guard from the ship at the local yard were sent to Norfolk today.

Opera for Christmas.

An opera to be given by the prisoners of the Naval Prison at Christmas is under way and will be staged under the supervision of Lieut. Comdr. Thomas Mott Osborne.

Inspecting Prison.

Warden Cogswell and members of the New Hampshire prison commission are inspecting the Naval Prison at the local yard today.

Workman Injured.

Lewis Gmelin of School street, a shipsmith in building 76, was badly injured shortly after noon today. A pair of tongs became caught in a machine and were driven deeply into his thigh. He was removed to the Naval Hospital for treatment.

EMERGENCY FLEET NEWS

Reporter Visits Atlantic Yard; Interesting Article on His Impressions of the Big Steel Plant.

The following article appeared in the Emergency Fleet News of last week and will be read with much local interest:

Some years ago, 142 to be exact, a large ship was built here and launched in the Piscataqua River. She was 64 feet breadth and 180 feet long and carried 74 guns. The boss of construction according to the historic records, which New Hampshire folk are so careful to keep intact, was no less a person than John Paul Jones, of naval fame. That was the largest and one of the first wood ships built in New Hampshire and when she sailed down the Piscataqua with the name "America" on her prow, she doubtless caused a deep and lasting sensation in these parts. At least, Portsmouth citizens to this day talk with pride about the good ship "America" and her builder. Since then many wood vessels have been built in the Piscataqua, but it will not be until next month that this historic old stream will receive a modern steel steamer fresh off the ways upon her bosom. When the new 8,000-ton freighter slides into the water she will have the proud honor of being not only the first of 10 to be built for the Government by the Atlantic Corporation, but the first steel ship ever built in New Hampshire. Naturally, then, Portsmouth is looking forward to launching day with interest and home-pride enthusiasm.

It will, however, be a gala day for the shipyard for other reasons, chief of which is that the initial launch will mark the successful culmination of a gigantic enterprise, carried out under most severe conditions. After this pioneer ship shows the way, nine more are expected to follow before next May and then this Portsmouth yard will expect to have proved its worth and earned further orders on Government account.

Never having built a steel ship before, Portsmouth and vicinity, naturally were not over-populated by steel shipbuilders. It was a new game in Hampshire and it became the task of the shipyard management not only to organize their production forces, but for the most part, to teach their men. So classes in riveting, caulking, bolting-up and all the other trades, were started under the leadership of the Industrial Training Section of the Fleet Corporation.

There is one feature of the system at the Atlantic Corporation yard that differs from most yards. Instead of confining the work of the students to practice on frames, set up apart from the ways, B. W. Kempton, in charge of the school, sent his nine instructors and their pupils to the ways and had them begin to build ships.

At first they worked only on the bottom shell plates and many still are engaged on this work exclusively on Way No. 6, which was the last of the five ways to receive a keel. None but students are employed on that hull. But many of their brethren have been shifted to Way No. 1, where the pioneer ship is nearing the launching stage and asked to hold up their portion of the job. How well they are succeeding was shown as the writer was going through the yard with Charles E. Downton, employment manager. A young man who proved to be Mr. Kempton, the head instructor, approached with a smile that hinted at triumph.

"Here is our latest report on riveting," he said, "It shows my boys leading the journeymen riveters by almost 50 rivets per man per day."

His students are men who, for the most part, never saw a steel ship until late last summer.

This yard, which was a bare spot on the river side of a hill in the outskirts of Portsmouth last spring, is gradually building up an efficient and business-like organization. It is apparent that the success achieved thus far is due largely to the energy of H. C. Haynes, the "boss" who, as general manager, has won the confidence and devotion of the 2,400 men in the plant.

And to Downton, the employment manager, much credit is due for the building up of the morale of the plant. Downton formerly was in charge of employment at one of the big Westinghouse plants and he has his own ideas—among which is that every man is cut out for a particular job. It seems to have the knack of picking the right man for the job he has open.

An example is a foreman in the angle shops—a young man—who came in from the country and who never saw a shipyard until last July. He wanted to be a riveter but was put to work in the angle shop. He persisted in insisting to be given a chance at the riveting game and finally went to work on a hull. But after three weeks he returned to the angle shop and now he is a foreman—considered one of the most promising men in the shops.

An outfitting pier has just been completed at the yard and will accommodate two vessels at the same time. Heads of the plant say that after the first launch they will have a ship out to sea with cargo aboard, within 60 days. And after that they expect to go after some speed records.

Much emphasis is being laid on the riveters' work and an effort made to improve the daily average, which is far below the standard maintained in some of the older yards. To this end, Downton is about to start a contest, in which he offers cash prizes. Riveters on Way No. 1 are offered a prize of $100, to be divided weekly, on a basis of $14, $32 and $24 for each of three leading groups of gangs, the number of gangs in each group to be fixed arbitrarily by the management. The leading gang each week will be awarded $50 each and to the gang leading all rivets on the day the ship is launched, a cash prize of $250 will be awarded. Bronze medals also are being cast, to be awarded the winners on the day the ship is launched.

Still old Portsmouth looks with pride upon her new industry and, given an even break with the weather, citizens say this town is soon to appear on the steel ship building map in large letters. But there is every sign of cold weather approaching and some of the men are leaving to seek work in the South. Within the next two months the management says this plant can absorb from 1,300 to 1,500 more men. The heads of the Corporation hope that military demobilization will bring a high class of workers to the yard, sufficient to meet immediate needs.

NO PILOTS FOR GERMAN AIRPLANES

(By Associated Press) London, Dec. 5.—There will be no formal surrender of German airplanes as was at one time expected because it has been found impracticable to assemble 2000 airplanes at one time at one place and it is doubtful whether Germany has a sufficient number of reliable pilots for that purpose. Hence the first surrender in history of an air fleet is being effected by piecemeal. The Germans are shedding their wings in the course of retreat and the advancing allies are picking them up.

RELIGIOUS CENSUS TAKEN ON SUNDAY

The plans for the Religious Census of the city which is to be taken on Sunday afternoon by canvassers from ten local churches are about completed. Each pastor will send out a certain number of canvassers and our citizens are asked to have some one of the family at home on that afternoon to answer the questions of the canvassers for unless the information is given the census cannot be completed.

The canvassers will start out at two o'clock, there being no postponement unless in case of a severe snow storm and the pastors ask the co-operation of our citizens.

The committee will be supplied with cards and on each is space for the name of each individual in the house. The canvasser will ask the name of each, the church preference and if there are any children in the home and if so do they attend Sunday school. These questions are written on the card and the canvasser fills the card out from the information given.

On Sunday evening a union rally at the North church will conclude the day's plans. Dr. Luther E. Loveloy of Detroit, Mich., will give the address of the evening. His subject will be "The World Task of the Church in the New Day." A special musical program will be rendered. The quartette of the Unitarian church will assist the regular quartette at this service and Mrs. George E. Chaffee will render vocal solos.

Mr. Libby is a native of Portland, a graduate of the University of Maine Law School and was admitted to the bar in 1914. He will succeed Frank L. Ayer, who has been made general counsel of the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad.

The Boston and Maine railroad officials have issued orders to freight train crews directing the careful attention to fires in heated cars. The company was obliged to settle many claims for loss of perishable shipments last year owing to failure to heat cars properly.

FOR SENDING GIFTS ABROAD

Persons who wish to remember friends in various countries abroad by Christmas presents will be allowed to do so by acting in accordance with Janessa R. A. C. 60, just made public through the Boston office of the War Trade Board. This provides that Christmas packages may be shipped to individuals in the United Kingdom, France, Italy, Belgium and their colonies, other than members of the American Expeditionary Forces, Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus, etc., who are taken care of in a previous cutting of the War Trade Board.

This new ruling is in effect until Dec. 15, so that nearly two weeks remain for taking advantage of it. The name of the sender must be on the package; also a statement of the contents. Gold, silver and real jewelry cannot be sent. More than ten pounds of tea or one pound of sugar also are barred. Permission to send any of the excluded articles, or in excess of the amount where quantity is limited, can be obtained only by individual application to the Board of Trade, London. Other information may be had by application to the War Trade Board, through the office in the Boston Custom House.

SAY MAN HOLDS SPELL OVER GIRL

Claremont, N. H., Dec. 4.—A strange case of apparent hypnotic influence over a young girl, which results in frequent spells of coma and trances lasting for hours, is attracting the attention of the police here, and a search is being made for a man who answers the description given by the girl in her trances.

Nearly two months ago Miss Amy Gile, 17, found a black hand letter addressed to her and threatening abduction. She went into a swoon immediately, and since then has been unable to escape from the occult influence. She says she is in the grip of the unknown man and is powerless to move hand or foot until he releases her.

Miss Gile came here from Windsor, Vt., with her family. Neighbors claim to have seen a strange man lurking about the house, and it is believed he may be the man who attacked another girl on a lonely road a few weeks ago. When in one of her trances, Miss Gile says, the psychic influence commands her to slug, to talk or walk, and she cannot help doing so. When she recovers she is in a state of high fever and very weak.

SHATTUCK SHIP YARD NOTES

"HURRY-UP HURLEY"

Just now there are three names that stand out most prominently in the preliminary reconstruction movements. They are, Wilson, Hurley, and Hurley. The man in whom we have the most interest outside of our great president is our own peerless leader, Edward N. Hurley, "Hurry-Up Hurley," as he is called, the chairman of the Shipping Board.

His is a career that is typical of the man. His life story is much more interesting than that of the average American. We know that it will interest every reader of the Treenatlans so we are publishing it.

Born in Galesburg, Ill., he found family finances in such a state when he was fifteen that he decided to leave the public schools and go to work to help out.

"I've got to hurry up and get a job," he said, and he landed a job in a machine shop before eight o'clock that morning. In a few years he got an opportunity to work for the railroad as a fireman on a freight locomotive.

After a while he sought a job on a passenger train.

"They go faster," he said. He was fond of hurrying up. He got the job. Before he was twenty there came an opportunity. The engineer did not show up.

"Put Hurley at the throttle," said the boss.

"But he's only a youngster," some of the older men objected.

"Life made good so far," was the only argument, and so he was given the right-hand side of a passenger locomotive, which means that he was to be, for that trip at least, engineer of a passenger engine.

He merely shifted over from the fireman's seat at the left to the engineer's seat at the right of the cab, another fireman was brought on, and Hurley said, "Hurry up."

Just as the fireman was stoking up and young Hurley was chugging up, an old-timer mentioned to him that it was a shame to give him that run.

"This train has never been on time. The schedule is all wrong. It is impossible to make the trip on time."

"Well, try, hey, huh?" he shouted to his fireman, and for the first time in the history of the road that express went through on schedule. Young Hurley never went back to the fireman's side of a locomotive after that.

Then came a railroad strike. They sent for Hurley on another road. He was about to take the job when he was told that he couldn't. It was against the Union rules.

"That settles it, I'm no quitter. I'll play fair," he told them, "but I won't sit around waiting for this strike to be settled."

This fellow who couldn't wait for the strike to be settled got a job that very day; he became secretary to the man who is known as the "Gladstone of the Labor Movement," P. M. Arthur. This shows the man; he had left school at fifteen and then turned to and worked as machinist, fireman, and engineer, and yet, meanwhile, he had studied hard and so was fit to step upward when the chance came. He didn't care for the work, so he became a traveling salesman for a Pennsylvania steel-plate firm at which he "hurried up" for years. Just then opportunity called and he was shrewd enough to see it. The writer continued:

A machinist of his acquaintance was trying to perfect a pneumatic riveter. Every one who has lived where steel construction is going on has heard the "bat-tat-tat-tat" of the pneumatic or compressed air riveter. Hurley had very little money, but he hired five workmen and started, with his partner, perfecting the riveter. He to oversaw and jumper, once more, in a tiny, dirty shop, he worked with the men. Then he tried to introduce the riveter here. It was slow work. He decided to go to England with it.

"To the great ship-building plants on the Clyde he went. His riveting did not seem possible, but they allowed him to try it out. Before a big assembley Mr. Hurley drove the first rivet that was ever put into a steel ship in any other way than by hand. He had no difficulty in getting English rights and with this money he went back to America and started up a big business. Sometimes he went to a company and presented his card as president of his own company. At other times he presented a card which represented him to be only an agent. He carried his outfit, showed what his riveter would do, and thus built up his business here.

Without this pneumatic riveter the big ships of today could not be built. As it is necessary to use rivets far too large for man-power to drive.

No one knows how many years he might have been struggling to get his company started here if he had waited. But he knew that his riveter was as important for ship-building as for sky-scraper and bridge-building, so he went where the biggest ships were built.

Finally he sold out his interests for a million dollars, holding some other interests that did not require his presence, and retired to his stock farm at Wheaton, Ill.

But so clever a man was needed. President Wilson had him go to South America to study trade conditions and get from him the first report that really improved our trade relations. Then he asked to help in Red Cross work, being a master-hand at organization. Then there came trouble in our ship-building, a row between Goethals and Demman over wooden ships. President Wilson asked Hurley to take over the whole job.

They know now in Washington who "Hurry-up" Hurley is. Within six days after he took charge he took over all of the ships and shipyards for Government service. He began building yards until now we have nearly 150 yards. He standardized the ships so that 82 per cent of the ships are built in factories all over the country, hundreds, and some of them thousands, of miles from the ocean. Only 18 per cent of the ships are actually created at the yards. The standard parts are shipped on and the ships assembled. We must build 5,000,000 tons of ships this year, or 1,200 ships, which is ten times as many ships as were ever before built in this country in a single year. Hurley will do it.

MILTON AND ROY H. BEATTIE
HEAD OF SHIPYARD

Director General Schwab has received a telegram from the Portland Ship Ceiling Company of Portland, saying that the company expects to deliver three ships instead of one as scheduled in November. On November 11, the day that the armistice was signed, the steamer "Chibabwa," built by our plant, was delivered to the Government. It was a fitting event for the celebration.

The steamer "Roy H. Beattie," also a Shattuck hull, has had a successful sea trial and the Portland Ship Ceiling Company promises its delivery in a few days. The steamer "Milton," another Shattuck hull, will be ready for her sea trial this week.

Mr. Schwab wired the company, saying: "Your telegram shows the right spirit and will be a splendid appreciation from your boys of the great victory which has come to us. A great share of this victory is due to the shipbuilders whose patriotic and co-operative efforts have made it possible. They can always take pride in what they have done. Please thank your boys for me."

CURRENT EVENTS SUBJECT OF ABLE LECTURE

"Current Events" was the subject of an able lecture given by Rev. William Porter Niles, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd of Nashua, on Wednesday afternoon at Pierce Hall under the auspices of the Grafton Club and was heard by a large and appreciative audience.

The speaker outlined the principal events of the war and he told the part each of the allies played to help win, each, even the smallest nation, had its own part and helped gain the great victory. He referred to Abraham Lincoln and the stand he took for Democracy and spoke of how often Lincoln was favorably quoted in the newspapers during the war and the great example he had set to the present generation, the characteristics of the "Great Emancipator" being more and more appreciated. The speaker dwelt on the wonderful surrender of the German fleet to the allies and through his entire address held the close attention of his audience.

The Grafton Club will observe "Guest Night" on Wednesday evening Dec. 18, at Pierce Hall. The attraction will be Elizabeth Potter Rice, who will give a dramatic reading of "Miss Hobbs" by Jerome K. Jerome. This occasion will be called Army and Navy Night, as enlisted men are to be entertained by the organization.

HORSES ARE ABUSED BY BOY DRIVERS

People Are Insulted When They Protest Against It.

It is time that the whipping and abuse of horses by boy drivers in this city was stopped and if the owners of the horses cannot put a stop to it the S. P. C. A. should take a hand.

The horses of grocery delivery wagons are the most abused by boys who know and care nothing about a horse. A whip or a club is in their hands continuously and they delight in beating the animal. On several occasions these drivers have insulted women who have protested against their actions and it looks as if some of the owners do not care how the boys treat the horses so long as they get the work done. The beating which the horses are getting should be applied to these boys. It is time the abuse of animals in this city was stopped, if it takes the police to do it.
